Challenges

To maintain sustainable development, China

ferroalloys companies need to continuously invest in the renewal of mineral resources in overseas, how to make stable supply of manganese ore and chrome ore? If invested in Minerals Resources, how to make infrastructure development, personnel training and business processes improvement? The prolonged period of unstable prices of Manganese ore and chrome ore, and unstable price of Future market of ferroalloys continued to weigh on the investment attractiveness and profitability of the mining and Ferroalloys businesses in China. Against this background, most companies continue to give priority to the optimization of production, ensuring profitability and the consolidation of assets.

Constant improvement of efficiency and reduction of costs presents a great challenge to many ferroalloys enterprises, as mistakes can be very costly. The success of modern ferroalloys enterprise relies on many internal and external factors. How efficient is the management? Is there a good knowledge and skills set? Do the leaders and operational managers work in sync and share the same goals? Are the right technologies and equipment being used to achieve best results? Is there a culture for innovation and self-improvement? The word "innovation" is no longer a tribute to fashion. Ability of companies to innovate is the main pre-requisite for keeping up with the low margins and challenging environment.
